Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Government of the American Historical Association To the Members of the American Historical Association: In the April, 1914, number of the American Historical Review, there appeared as the opening paper of that number, under the initials of the Managing Editor, an account of the last meeting of the American Historical Association, held at Charleston and Columbia, South Carolina. In treating the question of the government of the Association, which was raised at the business meeting, the Managing Editor of the Review, in the final pages of his account, made a lengthy defense of the present management, complimented the Council of which he is an influential member, and contended vigorously that changes looking to a larger control by the members who attend the meetings and bear the financial burdens year after year, were unnecessary. The evident purpose of that contention was to convince the members of the Association, through its official organ, that the position taken at Charleston, and later in a series of letters in the Nation, by those who are contending that a democratic policy, as laid down in the organic law, is best for the future growth and usefulness of the Association, was without merit. The Review is the official publication of the American Historical Association; it is the property and should be under the control of the Association. When the official organ is made the medium for the discussion of a subject of controversy in the Association by one charged with its management, or by any one else, it seems that an opportunity should be given for the presentation of the other side of the question. In other words, when Dr....
